

nbc4.tv

Compare Schools Using National Council On Teacher Quality Database

POSTED: 9:23 am PST January 4, 2007

A new online database will allow parents to compare schools across the country. The National Council on Teacher Quality is launching the database on Thursday.

The database contains the specifics of state policies and union collective bargaining agreements for the nation's 50 largest school districts, including Los Angeles.

The database is designed to help parents and others better understand teachers' working conditions.

For more information, go to: NCTQ.org

Copyright 2007 by NBC4.tv. All rights reserved. This material may not be published, broadcast, rewritten or redistributed.